Dear Ms Dahm,

RE: YOUR CORRESPONDENCE TO THE CRIME AND CORRUPTION COMMISSION

I am writing to you about your ongoing communication with the Crime and Corruption Commission (CCC).

You will recall that, on 18 May 2026, the CCC sent you correspondence advising that, due to your ongoing voluminous correspondence and disregard for our previous advice, a decision had been made to place you on a three-month communication restriction. You were advised that during this time the CCC would not consider any correspondence from you. In that correspondence you were also advised that upon completion of the three-month period a review of the decision would be undertaken, at which point you would be advised whether the restriction has been lifted or whether it would be extended for a further three-month period.

Since receiving our correspondence, and in disregard of the communication restriction, you have sent the CCC approximately 150 emails.

No further communication

I am writing to formally advise you that, due to your ongoing voluminous correspondence and disregard for our previous advice, a further three-month communication restriction is being implemented. The CCC will not consider any correspondence from yourself for a period of three months from the date of this letter.

I am taking this course of action for the following reasons:

- The content and nature of your ongoing communications is unreasonably persistent.
- It is an unjustifiable use of resources to consider the volume of materials you continue to submit to the CCC.

If you send further correspondence to the CCC during the three-month period, regardless of whether this is by phone/email/post/lodgement form, it will simply be placed on file in accordance with the CCC's record keeping requirements and will not be considered further. Upon completion of the three-month period a review of the decision will be undertaken, at which point you will be advised whether the restriction has been lifted or whether it will be extended for a further three-month period.

Application of the Human Rights Act 2019
The Human Rights Act 2019 applies to the CCC when it makes decisions about how it will deal with complaints that it receives and the action it takes. The CCC is of the view that this decision to decline to communicate with you further in relation to the concerns discussed above is compatible with our obligations under the Human Rights Act 2019, and is an appropriate response based on the contact we have had with you.

I trust this information is of assistance.

Yours sincerely,

Elizabeth Foulger
